

MAD DOGS MENACE

PEOPLE OF NATION

Vigorous Campaign Instituted to Prevent Spread of Hydrophobia.

In this day and age when so many persons have pet dogs an awful menace hangs over their heads each day, especially in the summer time, and that is the danger from the dread hydrophobia. Few people realize the number of patients that are received in the Pasteur institutes every month and many are inclined to scoff at the idea of rabies.

Nearly everyone will admit that mad dogs, as hydrophobia-infected canines are commonly called, are prevalent in every community during the hot summer months, but the suggestion that their own pet may fall a victim is characterized as absurd. They do not seem to realize that dogs used to the best of care are just as likely to become a victim as the commonest street cur and that they are a menace not only to their owners but every passer-by as well.

The authorities of the District of Columbia are particularly anxious to minimize the danger within their jurisdiction and are vigorously enlisting the co-operation of the people at large to adopt every possible preventive measure. A well organized campaign against rabies has been instituted in the District. Hydrophobia, how it is contracted, its dangers, and how it is battled with are the topics in an interesting article in the magazine section of tomorrow's Times. It is a subject that should interest every one.

Ward-Reid Wedding.

Within a few days, Miss Jean, the charming daughter of Ambassador to Great Britain Whitelaw Reid, will become the bride of Hubert Ward, a younger son of the Countess of Dudley. Although it will be a "quiet wedding," it will be the social event of the year for no less a person than King Edward VII has "commanded" that the ceremony be solemnized in the royal chapel. This means that the marriage will be witnessed by the King and Queen of England, as well as other members of the royal family. All the details of this interesting event form an attractive page in the magazine section and it promises to be eagerly read by the fair sex.

Many persons, who have visited the far-famed Casino at Monte Carlo, have wondered why the management of the gambling resort has clung to the use of keroseene lamps when all the world promises to be eagerly read by the fair sex. The details of this thrilling event form the basis of a clever detective story in the magazine section of tomorrow's Times and it is one of the series in the reminiscences of Antoine Martin and it is exciting from beginning to end.

Is She Wife or Widow?

Six years ago a pretty young woman in New York city drew aside the thought of family relatives and friends and eloped with a young man, whom her parents objected to. The couple went abroad and traveled on the Continent for five months, supremely happy. One day in Paris the husband kissed his bride good-bye before going out for a short walk. He went and has never been heard from since. In the five and a half years that have elapsed the woman has been making a vain quest to learn whether she is wife or widow. She is now on her way to Alaska. What will she find there? Read what she expects in the Times magazine.

Another interesting page, one that is brimming with human interest and pathos, is about Senator Gore of Oklahoma. This patient and resigned man has been sightless for thirty years and now he is undergoing an operation that may restore the vision of one eye. It will be one of the most remarkable operations of the century if successful. There is another story that has to do with Oklahoma, and that is about a unique political campaign that turned a Republican district Democratic. One of the new State's foremost as well as its most popular citizens offered a three-cent hereford calf to each county showing a 20 per cent Democratic gain. His name, the Democratic nominee for Congress, was elected by a substantial majority. The details of the campaign make an amusing reading for a Sunday in summer. You will find it in the magazine section.

American Siberia.

How many of our influential citizens know that the United States has a Siberia of its own with this difference: Russia's is cold; ours is hot. It's a fact, and our Siberia is known as Arizona, and today we have one exile at Fort Grant. He is an officer in the United States army. He must live at Fort Grant without a command and all alone in this deserted fort until he reaches the retiring age. His name, offense, and all the circumstances leading to his banishment have been entertainingly written for the Times magazine section.

WOMEN DENOUNCE CHARTER

The women of Concord, N. H., are struggling to have the word male omitted from the new city charter. It is asserted that the word male of Concord is one of the most antiquated in America. It is a copy of Boston's original charter, and among its provisions are minute directions to the chief of police assigning him all sorts of puritanical duties. Women are warned to refrain from their sinful practices and tradesmen against selling rum to Indians. The women now say that to prohibit them from voting at this advanced state of the world is just as antiquated and as irrational as the provisions relating to witches.

Taft and Hughes the Favored Ticket; Boom for Governor Guild Loses Force

Careful poll of the Senators and Representatives who have been in conference with President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft during the week in connection with the plans for the Republican national convention at Chicago, shows that in the opinion of the leaders of the party Governor Guild has little or no chance of carrying off the Vice Presidential nomination at Chicago. Despite the supposed coldness existing between Governor Hughes, of New York, and President Roosevelt, it is generally admitted that Taft and Hughes is the ticket desired at Chicago above all others.

Vice President Fairbanks is persistent in announcing that he will take "first place or nothing" and it is quite likely that if he continues to take that attitude he will be taken at his word. In that event the leaders are inclined to turn to Senator Jonathan Dolliver, of Iowa.

Good Campaigner.

Mr. Dolliver is a good campaigner and, above all, in sympathy with Roosevelt policies. Secretary Cortelyou also is mentioned and it is known that he would welcome the presentation of his name before the convention. His strength, however, is not so great as that of Dolliver.

The case of Governor Guild is considered by his friends in Washington as unfortunate. Every shred of information which has come to Washington has been to the effect that the governor's siege of illness has left him in a condition which would not permit him to run for office. The nature of the illness, too, seems to give some concern.

One of the governor's personal friends, who also is close to the President, said today: "The governor's case is really unfortunate. Before his illness he was a great campaign speaker and he would have been an ideal candidate for the Vice Presidency. With the knowledge of what he went through in his recent siege of illness the party leaders naturally do not look with favor upon his candidacy. Although he is a personal friend, I must confess that from what I know of the existing conditions he has no chance whatever of receiving the nomination."

Another friend, a Senator who has known Governor Guild for many years and who made it his business to investigate the boom for the Massachusetts governor said that he had been informed that the governor, instead of making preparations for a strenuous political fight, should be resting.

Couldn't Make Campaign.

"The information which comes to me," he said, "is that Governor Guild could not make the necessary speaking campaign, and I am in a position to know that whatever consideration is being given to his name is that confined to his own State and possibly to other States in New England. Certainly there is no intention on the part of the leaders to give him a place on the ticket."

John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, is considered to have even less chance than the governor. The latter has the united support of his own State and his delegates will urge his name. Thus far, however, Mr. Hammond is without such support.

ARTIST HENRI WEDS; SOME SAY ELOPED

News Told by Friends After the Couple Sails for Spain.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Friends of Robert Henri, the artist, learned with some astonishment yesterday that he married, May 5, Miss Marjorie Organ, also an artist, and that they are on their way to Spain aboard the steamer Moltke, which sailed last Tuesday.

Among people who know both Mr. Henri and his bride, however, the marriage is characterized as an elopement. Otherwise, it is asked, why so much secrecy?

Although the marriage is a month old, friends of Mr. Henri who have been meeting him almost every day received no intimation from him previous to the regular announcement that he had taken part in any wedding ceremony. Miss Organ had intuitively felt right that was done in Connecticut, and that a Catholic priest officiated. Mrs. Henri's family, who live at 9 West 107th street, are devout Catholics. Mr. Henri is a Protestant.

Mr. Henri and Miss Organ were married in Connecticut. Some of the artist's friends said yesterday that they understood the wedding was performed by a justice of the peace in Elizabeth, N. J., but Mrs. Henri's mother declared intuitively last night that was done in Connecticut, and that a Catholic priest officiated. Mrs. Henri's family, who live at 9 West 107th street, are devout Catholics. Mr. Henri is a Protestant.

Mrs. Henri is twenty-one and has done illustrating for newspapers. Although she has been a pupil at the New York School of Art, she and Mr. Henri first met only three weeks before they were married. Mrs. Henri is small, with regular features, and has a mass of brilliant hair of a peculiar red gold. On the same steamer with Mr. and Mrs. Henri are about twenty of Mr. Henri's art pupils, mostly young women. Spain has a great artistic attraction for Mr. Henri, and every summer he goes there with a selected class of students who form a summer colony and work under his direction.

TOWER BIDS ADIEU TO GERMAN COURT

Cordial Welcome Awaits Dr. Hill, Who Will Become Ambassador Next Tuesday.

BERLIN, June 4.—Charmagne Tower, who is to be succeeded Tuesday as American ambassador to Germany by Dr. David Jayne Hill, today paid his farewell visit to Chancellor Von Bismarck, which practically marked the severance of his diplomatic connection with the empire.

Mr. and Mrs. Tower will be guests at numerous social functions before they quit Berlin Thursday for France. An official dinner will be given them tomorrow by Foreign Secretary Von Schoen. Emperor William will bid them farewell Monday, and the crown prince and princess will receive them Tuesday. Arrangements are being made to give Dr. Hill a cordial welcome, to rid his mind completely of the impression that his appointment was objectionable to Emperor William.

CHICAGO MAYOR MARRIES.

CHICAGO, June 4.—The information became public yesterday that Fred A. Busse, mayor of Chicago, was married April 29 to Miss Josephine Lee, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Judge Theodore Brennan, in presence of only five persons. Unusual steps were taken to keep the story quiet. Mayor Busse, to prevent the affair becoming public, invoked the aid of the county clerk, who issued a license to the numbered back of the current number with a fraction.

Teller "Shooed" Lincoln Away To Win Chicago Nomination

Senator Teller of Colorado the other day told a Lincoln story which he said never had been printed, and which in many ways was unique in its interest. Henry M. Teller was a young man in 1860 the year when Lincoln was nominated first for President. He lived in Illinois, and not only was an ardent Republican, but also an enthusiastic abolitionist. Already he was a politician, and he had been drawn, by his like interests, into the close relation with Lincoln.

Teller was one of the men who first recognized in Lincoln a Presidential possibility. So when the Presidential campaign came on, this young man was selected to go to Chicago and assist in the business of receiving delegates, talking Lincoln to them, and generally managing the game.

Teller's old friends—there are not many of them living whose memories go back to that day, but John A. Karson, of Iowa, who is still living in Washington, is one of them, and was a delegate in that convention of 1860—say that Teller was very diplomatic in handling his end of the game. "They credit him with great success in the manipulation of the rural delegates, who, in those days, came to the convention with less than a good look at me, could not be expected to nominate me, could it? I'll have a better chance if they don't even find out what I look like."

Lincoln Arrives.

Anyhow, young Teller got on handsomely; the prospect for Lincoln began to look better to him. The Westerners were inclined favorably. The date of the convention came on, and the crowds began to gather for what was instinctively realized would be a historic convention.

The factions were struggling for control. The candidates of course were all decorously keeping away from the convention city. It would be bad form for one of them to appear near the convention.

What was the consternation, then, in the Lincoln camp, when it was reported one afternoon that "Old Abe" had been seen in town; that he was loafing around, unknown to many of the visitors, but calling on his Chicago friends, and swapping stories about everything except the Presidency.

Lincoln must be hustled out of town. It would be ruinous to have it known that he had been in Chicago. Teller was set to eject him. He found the Presidential candidate at a hotel, enjoying himself watching the crowds. A brisk conversation ensued. Mr. Teller explained his mission as delicately as possible, but very firmly. Mr. Lincoln would run his chance if he remained in town.

Mr. Lincoln protested that he didn't have any chance whatever of being elected, and anyhow that a man whom the convention wouldn't nominate after seeing him oughtn't to be nominated. Mr. Teller insisted that there was an excellent chance, and that the proprieties demanded that he should be ejected. He would run his chance if he remained in town. At last, Mr. Lincoln yielded.

Homeliness Against Him.

"I'll go," he said. "I'll do it because I believe you fellows are right. Any country with less than a good look at me, could not be expected to nominate me, could it? I'll have a better chance if they don't even find out what I look like."

And at midnight, without half a dozen of the politicians knowing he had been in town, aside from his Illinois friends, he was put in the train and started back to Springfield. Three days later he was the nominee of the Republican party for the Presidency.

Mr. Lincoln regarded himself as the homeliest man in the country, and once told a friend that it was getting the votes of the people who were thankful for not being so homely that elected him.

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID TO GERRY'S MEMORY

Prominent men and women of Washington eulogized the memory of the late Philip F. Gerry last night at a meeting of the Gerry Memorial Association in the Public Library. An appeal was made for subscriptions to the memorial fund.

Dr. David T. Day told of Mr. Gerry as a boy, Allan Davis, principal of the Business High School, followed with the story of his success as a teacher; Miss Edna Gillett pictured Mr. Gerry as the lecturer in the cause of women, and Rudolph Kauffmann told of his success in the newspaper field; Mrs. Suzanne Oldie had as her subject "The Musician," and Glenn Brown, the architect, detailed Mr. Gerry's work for "the city beautiful."

Justice Stafford, of the District Supreme Court, also paid high tribute to Mr. Gerry, and a letter was read from Dr. Edward Everett Hale.

WANT MORE FUNDS TO FIGHT DISEASE

Public interest has been aroused by the work of the Associated Charities in the consumption campaign and since the publication of the fact that additional funds are needed to provide milk and eggs for these patients several donations of material amounts have been received by the Citizens' Relief Committee, which has the work in charge.

The Washington Diet Kitchen is providing milk diet and the Citizens' Relief Committee is providing, so far as possible, for incipient cases. The association acknowledges the great assistance given by the Washington Diet Kitchen and the instructive Visiting Nurse Society without which the society declares little could be done. Milton B. Allen, treasurer of the Citizens' Relief Association, states that $170 has already been received in special gifts for the sick diet and that $300 would be sufficient to carry on the work through the summer.

How Anty Drudge Keeps Cool.

Mrs. Heatup—"Gracious, Anty, you look cool as a cucumber, and here am I dripping with perspiration. And I know you started your wash the same time I did."

Anty Drudge—"Quite true, but I wash my clothes with Fels-Naptha soap. If you used Fels-Naptha, your clothes would be washed in half the time. Besides, I didn't have to do any back-breaking rubbing over a steaming wash. I used Fels-Naptha soap the Fels-Naptha way. Why don't you?"

More white things are worn in the summer—lawns, flannels, muslins and so forth. That means more washing. Likewise more hard work—unless Fels-Naptha soap is used.

Fels-Naptha simplifies summer washing and does it more satisfactorily. No hot fire is needed. That means a good deal when the thermometer is 90 in the shade.

Fels-Naptha does the washing thoroughly in cold or lukewarm water. Cold or lukewarm water saves the clothes. Boiling and hot water weaken clothes so they tear easily.

Fels-Naptha will not harm the most delicate fabric. Neither will it injure light-colored things which could not be washed safely with other soaps or in hot water.

The advantage of using Fels-Naptha soap is the Fels-Naptha way of washing.

Don't cook your clothes. Use Fels-Naptha. It does the work better in cold or lukewarm water.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.
